Biographical/Historical Sketch

Beverly Briley, often referred to as the "father of Metro government," was one of Nashville's most prominent political and civic leaders in the twentieth century. Briley served as the first mayor of Metropolitan Nashville and Davidson County, the first city and county in the United States to consolidate the two forms of government. He served in that capacity for twelve years.

Clifton Beverly Briley was born Jan. 11, 1914, in Nashville, Tennessee, to Clifton Weaver and Willie Whithorne Vaughan Briley. He attended public schools: Caldwell, Glenn, and Central High School in Davidson County, Tennessee. An active Boy Scout, Briley at age 13 became the youngest Eagle Scout in Nashville.

Briley showed an early interest in politics, serving as a State Senate page at age 15. After graduating from Central High School in 1930 at age 16, he entered Vanderbilt University with a plan to major in engineering. He later transferred to Cumberland University to enter the accelerated law program. In 1932 at age 18, Briley graduated from Cumberland and was licensed to practice law.

Briley married Dorothy “Dee” Gordon in 1934. They had two children: Clifton Beverly Briley, Jr. and Martha Diane Briley. In 1935, Briley opened his own law firm in Nashville, Tennessee, specializing in federal tax matters. He left the practice temporarily to enlist in the Navy in 1943, serving in the Pacific until 1945.

Returning to his law practice in Nashville, he developed an interest in local government. After running unsuccessfully for State Senate in 1946, Briley was elected County Judge in 1950 running on a platform of reform and modernization. Briley served a total of 13 years as County Judge, during which time he worked to streamline and improve county services. He became a founding member of the National Association of Counties (NACO) in 1955.

Along with others, Briley saw consolidation of city and county governments as a practical direction for Nashville and Davidson County. While the first proposal to consolidate government was defeated in 1958, it was finally approved by voters, June 28, 1962, the first city in the country to do so. Beverly Briley was elected the first mayor of Metropolitan Nashville and Davidson County, and began serving on the first date of the new form of government, April 1, 1963.

Briley oversaw the consolidation of city and county departments and the extension of public services across the county. He was the only U. S. mayor to be elected president of both the National Association of County Officials and the National League of Cities. He served as chairman of the National League of Cities Committee on Law Enforcement, served on the Board of Directors of the U. S. Conference of Mayors, and as a Special Advisor on Municipal Affairs to Presidents Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon. He was chosen Outstanding Southern Mayor in 1964 by the Suncoast League of Municipalities, and served as president of the Tennessee Municipal League. Briley served three terms as Metro’s mayor, retiring in 1975. Dee Briley, his wife, died June 21, 1980. Beverly Briley died after complications from surgery, Sept. 16, 1980. They are both buried in Spring Hill Cemetery in Madison, Tennessee.
Scope and Contents of the Collection

This collection documents the public service of Clifton Beverly Briley, County Judge of Davidson County, Tennessee (1950-1963), and first mayor of the consolidated government of Metropolitan Nashville and Davidson County (1963-1975). These materials show an effort to explain and promote consolidated government to local citizens and officials. Materials in the collection include typescripts of speeches, audio recordings, and photographs. The items were selected and kept by Mayor Briley for his own personal use.

Speech typescripts range from 1954 to 1972. The early speeches, focusing on efficiency and streamlining of county government, were delivered to groups both national and local. After citizens voted to consolidate Nashville city and Davidson county government (June 28, 1962), the speeches include Briley's Inaugural Address (1963), annual State of Metro addresses (1964-1970), and plans for the future, along with speeches on local issues. From 1963, Mayor Briley was asked to speak as an advocate for consolidated government to a wider audience, including: National Association of County Officials, a seminar at Columbia University, a workshop by AMA-NACO, North Carolina Associations of County Commissioners, and others.

Audio recordings (1965-1973) include some meetings between Briley and community leaders on various subjects. Three of the recordings are related to civil unrest in Nashville following a speaking engagement by black activist Stokely Carmichael in 1967. Many recordings of local radio interviews and public service “Metro Action Reports” are examples of ongoing efforts to keep the public informed about their government. While Mayor Briley is not present on all recordings, other individuals from Metro government and the community are the speakers. Also included are some campaign jingles.

Most of the photographs (1950-1975) are of Mayor Briley at various events in and around Nashville. However, because of his expertise in innovative local government, many images show him speaking in other locations around the country, often pictured with notable politicians of the day. Other subjects include: campaigns and elections; Metro meetings and Metro-related activities; a large quantity of ribbon-cuttings, ground-breakings and similar grand opening activities for a wide variety of buildings and businesses; the granting or receiving of awards; meetings with celebrities or planned press events; banquets; and numerous images of Briley with children.

Associated and Related Material
Metro Archives serves as the official custodian of government records of Nashville, Davidson County, and the Metropolitan Government and as such, holds a vast quantity of associated material. Oral histories conducted during the fiftieth anniversary of Metro government were conducted by Metro Archives in 2013 and may contain information about Mayor Beverly Briley and the formation of Metropolitan government. Related material in the Special Collections Division includes a series of interviews conducted with Mayor Briley by Paul Clements in 1980, part of the Century III oral history project.

Separated Material
One photograph, a large cabinet card probably dating from the early twentieth century, showing a family with young children on the porch of a house, has been separated from this collection and is now housed in the Nashville Room Historic Photographs Collection, P-5026. There is no identifying information on the photograph at all, and its connection to the Briley family is unknown. A photocopy of this image for reference purposes appears in the front of the first volume of photographs.

Administrative Information

Additional Physical Form Available:
Location of Originals/Duplicates: 115 original reel to reel audiotapes transferred from the Special Collections Division to Metro Archives in 2002. (Only 64 of these tapes were converted to digital format (.cda files) and form Series II: Audio Recordings, in the Beverly Briley Papers, Special Collections Division.)

Detailed Description of the Collection

Series Description

Typescripts of speeches made by Mayor Beverly Briley as an advocate for consolidated government. Speeches dated 1954 to 1962 are about the benefits of consolidated county/city government, in an effort to convince voters to support consolidation. A copy of the Inaugural Address by Mayor Briley, April 1963, is included. In addition, there are yearly reports about the state of Metro Nashville, along with speeches delivered on the April 1 anniversaries of the founding of Metro government. Speeches given to groups such as the National Association of County Officials; the Young Democrats Association; the National League of Cities, and others are included, as are speeches given at a wide range of special events, such as the commissioning of the U.S.S. Nashville, commencement addresses, and similar activities.
Addresses before groups from other cities are also included, from such locations as Providence, Rhode Island and Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

A variety of documents (not speeches) are included at the end of the series, including a Nashville promotional booklet, a White House worship service for Richard M. Nixon's inauguration, letters, newsclippings, and samples of the mayor's official stationary.

Arrangement: Speeches followed by other documents; both arranged chronological, with undated items at the end.

Series Description
The recordings cover a wide range of events and provide a sampling of Metro Nashville government’s activities. Some of the recordings are about major events in Nashville. One includes Mayor Briley’s 1963 swearing in and speech, as the first mayor of Metropolitan Nashville and Davidson County.

In April 1967, Stokely Carmichael of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee spoke at Vanderbilt University to a predominantly white audience as part of the annual Impact symposium. He also was rumored to have met with students at Fisk University and Tennessee A&I (TSU) in the days preceding his Vanderbilt speech. In the days following his Vanderbilt speech, riots, violence, and arson occurred along the Jefferson Street corridor in predominantly black North Nashville. It was said that students from Fisk and Tennessee A&I were among the instigators, and there was much debate over what circumstances led to the violence, and if Carmichael or his speech had any direct or indirect involvement in initiating the disturbance. Within days, Mayor Briley convened a meeting to address concerns from the African American community. Among those mentioned in attendance on the recording are Z. Alexander Looby and Avon Williams, and an unidentified woman simply noted as "Mrs. Goss."

Other recordings are about the extension of city services into county areas, the organization of the Metro Action Commission, reviewing the tax structure, as well as some of Mayor Briley’s press conferences. Campaign commercials and jingles are on several recordings.

There are a number of “Metro Action Reports,” and “Know Your Metro,” programs, discussing issues of the day. These programs were broadcast sometimes daily to highlight plans and programs in Metro Nashville government and Mayor Briley’s office.

Several Nashville talk show recordings are included, some with the mayor as guest. The recordings show the discussions surrounding the work of developing Metro Nashville. Some are meetings discussing how to reduce air pollution, discussions of pay structure for Metro Nashville employees, and urban renewal work after Metro was selected for a federal Model City Grant.

Processing and organization note: There are sixty-four recordings in the collection, digitized into .cda format from original analog reel to reel magnetic tape recordings. Dates range from 1965 to 1973 with the majority from 1967-1969. A number of the recordings do not have years included with the dates. The lack of complete dates and in some cases any date at all on the recordings made it impossible to arrange them in chronological order.
In addition, while processing the recordings, it was discovered that the original labels on some recordings did not match their actual content. To address this problem, the new labels on the CDs show the actual content as well as the original information from the original recording. Also during the course of processing, duplicate recordings were identified as well as multipart recordings. This required some minor reorganization from the original order, which has otherwise been maintained.

A total of 115 reel-to-reel tapes were a part of the original donation. Only 64 of these tapes were digitized to CDs. All reel-to-reel tapes were transferred to Metro Archives in 2002.

Arrangement: Generally, in original order as received from digitization, with some small changes.

Series Description

Since Nashville-Davidson County, Tennessee was the first U.S. city to establish the consolidated form of county/city government, there are photographs of Mayor Briley speaking to national groups interested in the concept. Officials from other cities are pictured as they visited Metro Nashville.

Most of the photographs were taken by an official government photographer. Therefore, there are many ground breakings, ribbon cuttings, and similar Metro Nashville events included. During election years, the total number of photographs in most categories increases.

For undated photographs, an effort was made using available information to place them accurately in the chronology. Two official photographs of the moon landing, gifts from NASA to Mayor Briley, are found in Series I with the speech by NASA Administrator, George E. Mueller (1969).

The photographs are arranged chronologically. The majority of photographs are 8 x 10; with a few smaller. Most are black/white with some in color. Many of the pictures do not have all the people identified. Some are not in good condition. The photograph dates are c. 1950 to 1975. Within each year, the photographs are grouped by sub-series. Photographs are numbered beginning each year with #001. The following sub-series groupings have been used always in this order:

Solo (portraits, photographs, and pictures of Beverly Briley alone)
Campaigns and Elections (not found in every year)
Metro Business and Meetings
Ground Breakings, Ribbon Cuttings, and Grand Openings
Small Informal Groups
Awards and Proclamations (both given and received)
Celebrities and Events with Media
Dinners, Meetings & Gatherings (large groups)
Briley with Children
Street or City Scenes

Not every year has photographs in each category. Some photographs do not have exact dates.

Two lists appear below. The General Overview shows each sub-series grouping with the number of photographs in each. The Detailed Listings gives a description of each photograph, naming individuals and events in the photo if known.
Arrangement: Chronological
